B COURT OF APPEAL (PUTRAJAYA) — CIVIL APPEAL
NO B-02(IM)(NCC)-1302-09 OF 2020
LEE SWEE SENG, AZIZAH NAWAWI AND SUPANG LIAN JJCA
21 APRIL 2022

C Contract — Guarantee — Guarantee for loan facility — Whether guarantor's liability to bank was independent of and unaffected by principal borrower's disputes with bank over their loan agreement — Whether guarantor's liability was wholly determined by terms and conditions in the Guarantee document itself — Whether
D Guarantee was unconditional and payable on demand — Whether guarantor was liable not merely as surety but also as principal obligor/debtor

E The respondent had executed a personal guarantee ('the guarantee') in favour of the appellant ('the bank') to unconditionally pay the bank on demand all monies owing to the bank at any time under a RM450m term loan facility ('the facility') it had granted to a borrower ('ABN'). The guarantee stipulated, inter alia: (a) that it would become immediately enforceable if an 'event of default' under the facility occurred; (b) that the respondent's obligations and liabilities under the guarantee were not merely as surety but also as primary
F obligor/debtor; and (c) that a statement of account issued by the bank certifying the amount owed by ABN under the facility would be final and conclusive proof of the respondent's indebtedness to the bank. When ABN was wound-up by the court — which constituted an 'event of default' under the facility — the bank demanded payment of the sum of RM236,796,198.64 from the respondent, which sum was then owing by ABN. the bank commenced the G instant action when the respondent failed to heed the demand. Meanwhile, in a separate action ('BA-22NCC-23-03 of 2021'), ABN sued the bank for damages for losses it had allegedly suffered as a result of the bank's 'delayed and erratic disbursements under the facility, its unconscionable conduct and its premature suspension of the facility' — all of which, it was alleged, contributed to ABN's winding-up. The High Court dismissed the bank's application for summary judgment against the respondent, inter alia, on the ground that the bank's inequitable and unconscionable conduct towards ABN was a factor that absolved the respondent of liability in equity. The instant appeal was against
H
I the High Court's decision.

Held, unanimously allowing the appeal, setting aside the High Court's decision and granting an order in terms of the summary judgment application:

- (1) The guarantee which the parties had entered into was executed with the intention of protecting the bank against the non-payment of the loans given to ABN. The terms and conditions in the guarantee had to be given a strict interpretation as to what the parties had intended (see para 45). A
- (2) The respondent had unconditionally guaranteed, as principal obligor/debtor, to pay the bank on demand if an event of default occurred. As an 'event of default' did occur under the facility and the sum of RM236,796,198.64 was due and owing by ABN to the bank, the bank was entitled to claim this sum from the respondent under the terms of the guarantee (see para 46). B
- (3) The respondent's liability under the guarantee was independent of the facility Agreement and therefore any claims that ABN might have had in Civil Suit No BA-22NCC-23-03 of 2021 against the bank did not discharge the respondent from his obligation to pay (see para 47). D
- (4) The appeal turned purely on the construction of the guarantee and the respondent's liability thereunder. There was no actual dispute of facts as far as the guarantee was concerned. Pursuant to cl 15.2 of the guarantee, the statement of account issued by the bank of the amount owed by ABN was prima facie evidence of the sum owing and this was not disputed by the respondent (see paras 19 & 44). E
- (5) The High Court erred in dismissing the summary judgment application on the basis that as a surety, the respondent was protected under Equity and discharged from liability when the bank acted in an inequitable and unconscionable manner towards ABN. The respondent complained that the bank's delayed and erratic disbursement of the term loan, its unilateral imposition of unreasonable timelines, the proposed Equity Capitalisation that altered the character of financing, the suspension of the term loan when the Equity Capitalisation was not accepted and the rejection of the s 176 scheme had jeopardised the ABN project and ultimately caused ABN's winding-up. The complaints raised by the respondent were issues that ABN could raise in its suit against the bank. They were not issues that affected the respondent's liability under the guarantee. As far as the guarantee was concerned, the respondent had clearly contracted his rights away and he was precluded from contending that he was entitled to be discharged in Equity (see paras 28-29 & 31-32). F
G
H
- (6) The respondent had contracted that all sums payable under the guarantee would be paid in full without any set off, counterclaim or condition whatsoever. He had agreed that his liabilities would not be affected or discharged by any termination, amendment or variation of the security documents so that whatever claim ABN had against the bank had no bearing on the guarantee and did not affect the respondent's liabilities I

A under the guarantee. The respondent was not merely a surety but a principal debtor. As such, he was not entitled to be discharged from his liability under the guarantee by virtue of cl 5.2 thereof, despite the pending suit by ABN against the bank (see paras 32 & 37).

B [Bahasa Malaysia summary]

Responden telah melaksanakan jaminan peribadi ('jaminan') yang memihak kepada perayu ('bank') untuk membayar tanpa syarat kepada bank yang menuntut semua bayaran pinjaman yang terhutang kepada bank pada bila-bila masa di bawah kemudahan pinjaman berjumlah RM450 juta ('kemudahan tersebut') yang telah diberikan kepada peminjam ('ABN'). jaminan tersebut menetapkan, antara lain: (a) ianya dikuatkuasakan dengan serta merta ketika 'kegagalan membayar' di bawah kemudahan tersebut; (b) bahawa kewajipan dan liabiliti responden di bawah jaminan bukan hanya sebagai penjamin tetapi juga sebagai penanggung/penghutang utama; dan (c) bahawa penyata akaun yang dikeluarkan oleh bank yang mengesahkan amaun yang terhutang oleh ABN di bawah kemudahan tersebut adalah bukti muktamad dan konklusif mengenai hutang responden kepada bank. Apabila ABN digulungkan oleh mahkamah — yang merupakan 'kegagalan membayar' di bawah kemudahan tersebut — bank menuntut pembayaran sejumlah RM236,796,198.64 daripada responden, yang jumlahnya kemudiannya terhutang oleh ABN. bank memulakan tindakan ini apabila responden gagal mematuhi tuntutan tersebut. Sementara itu, dalam tindakan berasingan ('BA-22NCC-23-03 Tahun 2021'), ABN menyaman bank bagi ganti rugi bagi kerugian yang dialaminya akibat daripada 'pembayaran tertangguh dan tidak menentu bank di bawah kemudahan tersebut, tindakannya yang tidak munasabah dan penggantungan Kemudahan secara pramatang' — yang didakwa menyumbang kepada penggulungan ABN. Mahkamah Tinggi menolak permohonan bank untuk penghakiman terus terhadap responden, antara lain, atas alasan bahawa tindakan bank yang tidak munasabah terhadap ABN dan membebaskan responden liabiliti secara Ekuiti. Rayuan ini di atas keputusan Mahkamah Tinggi tersebut.

Diputuskan, sebulat suara membenarkan rayuan, mengeneipkan keputusan Mahkamah Tinggi dan membenarkan perintah seperti dipohon menurut terma-terma didalam permohonan penghakiman terus:

- (1) Jaminan yang telah dimeterai oleh pihak-pihak tersebut telah dilaksanakan dengan tujuan untuk melindungi bank daripada tidak membayar pinjaman yang diberikan kepada ABN. Terma dan syarat dalam jaminan perlu diberi tafsiran yang ketat tentang apa yang dimaksudkan oleh pihak-pihak (lihat perenggan 45).
- (2) Responden telah membuat jaminan tanpa syarat, sebagai penanggung/penghutang utama untuk membayar bank atas tuntutan sekiranya berlaku kegagalan pembayaran. Oleh kerana 'kegagalan

- pembayaran' telah berlaku di bawah kemudahan tersebut dan jumlah RM236,796,198.64 telah terhutang dan terhutang oleh ABN kepada bank, bank berhak menuntut jumlah ini daripada responden di bawah terma jaminan tersebut (lihat perenggan 46). A
- (3) Liabiliti responden di bawah jaminan tersebut adalah bebas daripada Perjanjian Kemudahan dan oleh itu sebarang tuntutan yang mungkin ada dalam Guaman Sivil No BA-22NCC-23-03 Tahun 2021 terhadap bank tidak melepaskan responden daripada kewajibannya untuk membayar (lihat perenggan 47). B
- (4) Rayuan ini adalah untuk penafsiran terma-terma jaminan dan liabiliti responden. Tiada pertikaian fakta mengenai jaminan berkenaan. Menurut klausa 15.2 jaminan tersebut, penyata akaun yang dikeluarkan oleh bank daripada jumlah yang terhutang oleh ABN adalah bukti prima facie mengenai jumlah wang yang terhutang dan perkara ini tidak dipertikaikan oleh responden (lihat perenggan 19 & 44). C D
- (5) Mahkamah Tinggi telah terkhilaf dalam menolak permohonan penghakiman terus tersebut atas alasan bahawa sebagai penjamin, responden dilindungi di bawah Ekuiti dan dilepaskan daripada liabiliti apabila bank bertindak dengan cara tidak berekuiti dan tidak munasabah terhadap ABN. Responden menghujahkan bahawa pembayaran pinjaman bertempoh bank yang tertangguh dan tidak menentu, penetapan garis masa yang tidak munasabah, cadangan Permodalan Ekuiti yang mengubah ciri pembiayaan, penggantungan pinjaman bertempoh apabila Permodalan Ekuiti tidak diterima dan penolakan skim s 176 telah menjejaskan projek ABN dan akhirnya menyebabkan penggulangan ABN. Hujahan oleh responden adalah isu yang boleh dibangkitkan oleh ABN dalam samannya terhadap bank. Ianya bukanlah isu yang menjejaskan liabiliti responden di bawah jaminan tersebut. Dibawah jaminan tersebut, responden telah menyatakan dengan jelas haknya dan mereka dihalang menyatakan bahawa mereka boleh dilepaskan liabiliti secara Ekuiti (lihat perenggan 28-29 & 31-32). E F G
- (6) Responden telah bersetuju secara kontrak bahawa semua jumlah yang perlu dibayar di bawah jaminan akan dibayar sepenuhnya tanpa sebarang syarat, tuntutan balas atau sebarang syarat. Mereka telah bersetuju bahawa liabilitinya tidak akan terjejas atau dilepaskan oleh sebarang penamatan, pindaan atau perubahan dokumen jaminan supaya sebarang ABN terhadap bank tidak mempunyai kesan ke atas jaminan dan tidak menjejaskan liabiliti responden di bawah jaminan tersebut. Responden bukan sekadar penjamin tetapi penghutang utama. Oleh itu, beliau tidak boleh dilepaskan daripada liabilitinya di bawah jaminan berdasarkan klausa 5.2, walaupun terdapat saman yang belum selesai antara ABN dan bank tersebut (lihat perenggan 32 & 37). INTRODUCTION

[1] This is an appeal against the decision of the learned judicial commissioner dated 15 September 2020, dismissing the appellant's application for summary judgment of its claim. The appellant's claim against the respondent is for the sum of RM236,796,198.64, which the appellant claimed to be due and owing by the respondent under a guarantee dated 5 December 2012, executed by him in favour of the appellant.

[2] Having considered the appeal record and the submissions of the parties, we have allowed the appeal with costs.

C

THE SALIENT FACTS

D

[3] Asian Broadcasting Network (M) Sdn Bhd ('ABN') was awarded a contract to develop an affordable subscription based digital cable system (the 'ABN project') by the Government of Malaysia.

E

[4] Subsequently ABN entered into facilitation fund agreement dated 30 July 2012 with the appellant, Bank Pembangunan Malaysia Bhd ('the bank') and the Government of Malaysia whereby the Government agreed to provide ABN with a grant of RM100m to part finance the ABN Project.

F

[5] The facilitation fund agreement also provided that the government, pursuant to a management agreement dated 8 August 2011, appointed the bank to manage, monitor, administer and disburse the government grant to ABN.

G

[6] By a letter of offer dated 19 October 2012 ('LOO dated 19 October 2012'), letters of changes dated 27 November 2012, 6 February 2013 and 22 April 2014 ('letters of changes') and a facility agreement dated 5 December 2012 ('term loan agreement'), the bank granted a term loan facility of RM450m ('facility') to ABN, the borrower.

H

[7] The facility was secured by a personal guarantee dated 5 December 2012 executed by the respondent, in favour of the bank ('guarantee'). The respondent, Tan Sri Datuk (Dr) K Ketheeswaran is the Group Chairman of ABN Media Group Sdn Bhd, who owns 70% of the issued and paid up capital of ABN.

I

[8] Under the terms of the guarantee, the respondent had agreed, inter alia:

- A (a) to unconditionally and irrevocably guarantee to pay the bank on demand all moneys and liabilities which are at any time become due, owing or incurred by the borrower, ABN to or in favour of the bank under the term loan agreement (cl 2.2);
- B (b) upon the occurrence of an event in default, the guarantee will become immediately enforceable and the powers conferred under the guarantee will become immediately exercisable (cl 4.1);
- C (c) the obligations and liabilities expressed to be undertaken by the respondent under the guarantee are those of a primary obligor and not merely a surety (cl 5.3); and
- D (d) a statement of account issued by the bank as to the amount of monies and liabilities due to the bank the borrower ABN will be final and conclusive proof of indebtedness of the borrower under the term loan agreement and will not be questioned on any account whatsoever (cl 15.2).

E [9] ABN was wound up on 8 May 2017 pursuant to a winding up petition filed by Sony Malaysia Sdn Bhd. The winding up of ABN constituted an event of default under the terms of the term loan agreement, which triggered the claim to be made against the respondent under the guarantee.

F [10] As at 26 July 2017, the amount due and owing by the borrower, ABN to the bank under the facility is RM236,796,198.64.

G [11] By a letter dated 26 July 2017, the bank's solicitors demanded for payment of the sum of RM236,796,198.64 from the respondent pursuant to the terms of the guarantee.

H [12] When the respondent failed, refused and/or neglected to pay the sum demanded, the bank commenced this action against the respondent for recovery of the sum due and owing under the guarantee.

I [13] In a separate action, ABN had commenced Civil Suit No BA-22NCC-23-03 of 2021 against the bank seeking general damages for loss and damage suffered by ABN owing to the bank's delayed and erratic disbursements of the facility, its unconscionable conduct and its premature suspension of the facility, which caused the ultimate failure of the ABN project that led to the winding up of ABN.

THE DECISION OF THE HIGH COURT

[14] The learned JC had dismissed the bank's application for summary judgment on the grounds that apart from the conflicting evidence, there is an issue as to whether the respondent, as a surety is protected under the law of equity when the bank is said to be acting in an unequitable and unconscionable manner against the borrower, ABN. Added to that, since the bank was appointed by the government to be a co-partner to finance the project, it is a public policy that the bank has a duty to facilitate ABN towards achieving the ABN project's noble objective of providing digital services to the public.

OUR DECISION

[15] It is trite that where all the issues are clear and the matter in substance can be decided once and for all without having to go through a full blown trial, the matter ought to be resolved and decided in an O 14 application. The court should only exercise the power under the said provision in very clear cases.

[16] In Citibank NA v Ooi Boon Leong & Ors [1981] 1 MLJ 282; [1980] 1 LNS 168 His Lordship Raja Azlan Shah CJ, (as His Highness was then) had stated as follows:

That brings us to the important question whether the Assistant Registrar was entitled to deal with the case under the RSC Order 14 procedure. We have often said in this court many a time that where all the issues are clear and the matter of substance can be decided once and for all without going to trial there is no reason why the Assistant Registrar or the Judge in Chambers, or, for that matter this Court, shall not deal with the whole matter under RSC Order 14 procedure. (Emphasis added.)

[17] Therefore when issues raised in an application are clear cut, on pure question of law, the court should exercise its duty under O 14 of the Rules of Court 2012 and decide on the question of law even if the issue of law raised is a difficult one. In Malayan Insurance (M) Sdn Bhd v Asia Hotel Sdn Bhd [1987] 2 MLJ 183; [1987] 1 CLJ 246 (SC), Hashim Yeop Sani SCJ said this:

What is involved in the present appeal is the other principle considered in European Asian Bank by Goff LJ (as he then was) that is, what happens when a legal issue is raised by the defence in an O 14 application. In this regard several principles are involved. Firstly, the Court hearing an O 14 application should work within the framework of O 14 and not to embark in an exercise under O 33 r 2 which empowers the Court to determine any question or issue arising in a cause or matter whether of fact or law or partly of fact or partly of law before trial of the cause or matter. Order 33 r 2 is entirely for a different purpose. Secondly, where the issue raised is solely a question of law pure and simple without reference to any facts or where the facts are clear and undisputed the Court should exercise its duty under O 14 as in any other cases and decide on the question of law. This is so even if the issue of law raised is a difficult one. If the Court after considering the argument is satisfied that it is really unarguable then the Court should grant summary judgment.

In Cow v Casey [1949] 1 All ER 197 the legal question contended by the defence to be reasonably arguable was the point of law on sub-tenancy and the protection of

- A the Rent Restriction Acts. Lord Greene MR said at p 481:
- B If a point taken under the Rent Restriction Acts is quite obviously an unarguable point, the Court has precisely the same duty under O 14 as it has in any other case. It may take a little longer to understand the point and to be quite sure that one has seen all round it in a case under the Rent Restriction Acts than in other cases, but when the point is understood and the Court is satisfied that it is really unarguable, the Court has the duty to apply the rule, and, in my opinion, the Master was perfectly right, the Judge was perfectly right, and the appeal should be dismissed.
- C Referring to Cow v Casey Goff LJ in European Asian Bank said at p 516 on the functions of the appellate Court:
- D But where the appeal raises a question of law, this Court may be more ready to interfere. Moreover, at least since Cow v Casey [1949] 1 All ER 197; [1949] 1 KB 474, this Court has made it plain that it will not hesitate, in an appropriate case, to decide questions of law under O 14, even if the question of law is at first blush of some complexity and therefore takes ‘a little longer to understand’. It may offend against the whole purpose of O 14 not to decide a case which raises a clear-cut issue, when full argument has been addressed to the Court, and the only result of not deciding it will be that the case will go for trial and the argument will be rehearsed all over again before a Judge, with the possibility of yet another appeal.
- E
- F [18] Justice VC George in the case of Amanah Merchant Bank v Sumikin Bussan Kaisha Ltd [1992] 2 MLJ 832; [1992] 4 CLJ 2241; [1992] 2 CLJ Rep 59 held that an O 14 application should not be granted when any serious conflict of the facts or any real difficulty on a matter of law arises. But however difficult the point of law is, once it is understood and the court is satisfied that it is really unarguable, it would give final judgment.
- G Construction of the guarantee
- H [19] We are of the considered opinion that this appeal involves purely on the construction of the guarantee and the liability of the respondent to the bank under the guarantee. There is no actual dispute of facts as far as the guarantee is concerned. Pursuant to the guarantee, the respondent irrevocably and unconditionally undertook the following obligations and liabilities:
- I (i) 2.2 Guarantee
- The Guarantor irrevocably and unconditionally guarantees —
- (a) to pay to BPMB on demand, and in the currency in which the same falls due for payment, all moneys and liabilities which are now or at any time hereafter shall have been advanced to, become due, owing or incurred by the borrower to or in favour of BPMB under or in connection with any of the Security Documents; and
- (b) the due and punctual performance and discharge by the borrower of all of its

- obligations and liabilities under each of the Security Documents. A
- (ii) 2.3 Indemnity
- The Guarantor, as the principal obligor and as a separate and independent obligation and liability from his obligations and liabilities under cl 2.2, irrevocably and unconditionally agrees to indemnify BPMB in full on demand against all losses, costs and expenses suffered or incurred by BPMB arising from or in connection with — B
- (a) BPMB's making available the Facilities or any part thereof;
- (b) BPMB's entering into any of the Security Documents; C
- (c) any of the provisions of any of the Security Documents being or becoming void, voidable, invalid or unenforceable; and
- (d) the failure of the borrower to fully and promptly perform any of its obligations to BPMB under any of the Security Documents, together with all costs, expenses and other amounts payable by the guarantor under this Guarantee. D
- (iii) 4.1 Guarantee becoming enforceable
- If any Event of Default occurs, then, in addition and without prejudice to the rights and remedies of BPMB under any of the Security Documents, the security hereby constituted will become immediately enforceable and the powers conferred by this Guarantee, or under general law as varied or extended by this Guarantee will become immediately exercisable. E
- (iv) 5.1 Continuing security
- The security created by this Guarantee — F
- (a) will be held by BPMB as a continuing security for the payment and discharge of the indebtedness and the security so created will not be satisfied by any intermediate payment or satisfaction of any part of the indebtedness; and
- (b) will be in addition to and will not in any way be prejudiced or affected by any security arrangement made or granted by any Security Party in favour of BPMB from time to time. G
- 5.2 Liability of Guarantor not affected
- Without limiting the generality of the provisions of cl 5.1, the Guarantor acknowledges and agrees that none of his liabilities under this Guarantee will be reduced, discharged or otherwise adversely affected by — H
- (b) any termination, amendment, variation, novation, supplement or release of or to any of the Security Documents; or I
- ...
- (h) any act or omission which would not have discharged or affected the liability of the Guarantor had it been a principal debtor instead of Guarantor or indemnitor or by anything done or omitted by any person which but for this provision might

- A operate to exonerate or discharge the Guarantor or otherwise reduce or extinguish its liability under this Guarantee.
- (vi) 5.3 Primary obligation
- (a) The obligations and liabilities expressed to be undertaken by the Guarantor under this Guarantee are those of a primary obligor and not merely as a surety.
- B (b) BPMB will not be obliged before taking steps to enforce any of the rights and remedies under this Guarantee —
- (a) To take action or obtain judgment in any court against the borrower or any other person;
- C (b) To make or file any claim in bankruptcy, liquidation, administration or insolvency of the borrower or any other person;
- (c) To make demand, enforce or seek to enforce any claim, right or remedy against the borrower or any other person.
- D (vii) 8.1 No deductions or set-off
- All sums payable by the Guarantor under this Guarantee will be paid to BPMB in full —
- E (a) without any set-off, counterclaim or condition whatsoever; ...
- (viii) 15.2 Statement of Account
- The Guarantor hereby expressly agrees that a statement of account issued by BPMB as to the amount of any moneys and liabilities for the time being incurred or due to BPMB by the Guarantor will, save for manifest errors, be final and conclusive proof of the indebtedness of the borrower under the facility for all purposes whatsoever including purposes of legal proceedings and will not be questioned on any account whatsoever.
- F (ix) 15.6 Continuing liabilities and obligations
- G The liabilities and obligations created by this Guarantee are expressly intended to be and will be a continuing liability and obligation for all moneys whatsoever now or hereafter and from time to time due and owing by the Guarantor to BPMB under the Facilities.
- H [20] Like any other contract, the construction of a contract of guarantee depends primarily upon its expressed terms, and the respective rights of the parties must be gathered from the terms of the guarantee. This observation was stated clearly by the Federal Court in Heng Cheng Swee v Bangkok Bank Ltd [1976] 1 MLJ 267; [1979] 1 LNS 179, where it was held that a contract of
- I guarantee depends primarily on its expressed terms and cannot be varied by oral evidence; secondly, to determine the defendant's rights which are embodied in the guarantee, it is only necessary to look at the guarantee itself.
- [21] This position was reaffirmed by the Federal Court in The Pacific Bank

Bhd (sued as guarantor) v Kerajaan Negeri Sarawak [2014] 6 MLJ 153; [2015] 3 CLJ 717, where Zainun Ali FCJ held as follows:

A

[156] Having said that, it is a truism that a guarantee unlike an insurance, is not a contract uberrimae fidei. This observation was stated clearly by the Federal Court in Heng Cheng Swee v Bangkok Bank Ltd [1976] 1 MLJ 267; [1979] 1 LNS 179, where it was held that a contract of guarantee depends primarily on its expressed terms and cannot be varied by oral evidence; secondly, to determine the defendant's rights which are embodied in the guarantee, it is only necessary to look at the guarantee itself.

B

[157] The same approach was taken by the Rt Hon Justice Arifin Zakaria when His Lordship had occasion to interpret a contract of guarantee in Talasco Insurance Sdn Bhd v Lembaga Kemajuan Pahang Tenggara (DARA) [1996] MLJU 582; [1996] 1 LNS 342 where His Lordship observed that:

C

In the construction of a contract of guarantee it has also been said that a rigid adherence to the terms of the agreement need to be observed. As stated by the court in Blest v Brown [1862] 45 ER 1225:

... It must always be recollected in what manner a surety would bind him to the letter of his engagement. Beyond the proper interpretation of that engagement you have no hold upon him. He receives no benefit and no consideration. He is bound, therefore merely according to the proper meaning and effect of the written engagement that he has entered into.

[158] Likewise, in the case of payment made for performance bond or guarantee, there has to be strict compliance with the terms of the said performance bonds or guarantees, as illustrated in authorities such as Teknik Cekap Sdn Bhd v Public Bank Bhd [1995] 3 MLJ 449; [1995] 4 CLJ 697 and Kerajaan Malaysia v South East Asia Insurance Bhd [2000] 3 MLJ 625; [2000] 3 CLJ 705. (Emphasis added.)

F

Guarantee incorporates both guarantee and indemnity

[22] Clauses 2.2 and 2.3 of the guarantee incorporates both a contract of guarantee and a contract of indemnity. It is very clear from the terms of the letter of guarantee and indemnity executed by the respondent that the contract entered into between the bank and the respondent is a separate and independent contract, and that the contract is a contract of indemnity.

G

[23] In South East Asia Insurance Bhd v Nasir Ibrahim [1992] 2 MLJ 355; [1992] 4 CLJ 1801; [1992] 1 CLJ Rep 295, the Supreme Court explained that in a contract of indemnity, the promisor undertakes an original and independent obligation to indemnify, as distinct from a contract of guarantee which is a collateral contract by which the promisor undertakes to answer for the default of another person who is to be primarily liable to the promisee.

A Principal obligor/debtor

[24] Therefore, from a reading of both cl 2.2 and 2.3 of the guarantee, the respondent had given both a guarantee and an indemnity as a principal obligator or principal debtor. This has been reaffirmed by cl 5.3, which provides that the obligations and liabilities expressed to be undertaken by the respondent/guarantor under the guarantee are those of a primary obligor and not merely as a surety.

C [25] The effect of a principal obligor clause or ‘principal debtor’ clause has been explained by the Federal Court’s judgment delivered by Zulkefli Makinuddin CJ (Malaya) (as he then was) in Andrew Lee Siew Ling v United Overseas Bank (M) Bhd [2013] 1 MLJ 449; [2013] 1 CLJ 24, where it was held that a principal obligor is primarily liable for the principal borrower’s indebtedness to a lender and such a liability is not dependent or secondary to the liability of the principal borrower. The court held in paras [22]–[23] as follows:

E [22] It is our finding that the letter of guarantee and indemnity contained several clauses which clearly show the intention of both guarantors to undertake the liability for the repayment of the term loan and interest therein not merely as sureties but also as principal debtors as well as indemnifiers. The relevant cl 9, 17 and 21 of the Letter of Guarantee and Indemnity are reproduced as follows:

Clause 9

F Though as between us and the customer we are sureties only for the customer, yet as between you and us we shall be deemed to be principal debtors for all the monies the payment of which is hereby guaranteed and accordingly we shall not be discharged nor shall our liability be affected in any way by any fact circumstance act omission or means whatsoever whether known to you or not whereby our liability hereunder would have been discharged if we had not been principal debtors.

G Clause 17

H As a separate and independent stipulation we hereby agree that in the event the monies hereby guaranteed may not be recoverable on the footing of a guarantee, whether by reason of any legal limitation, disability or incapacity on the part of the customer or any other fact or circumstance, and whether known to you or us or not, shall nevertheless be recoverable from us as sole or principal debtor in respect of it and shall be paid by us on demand.

I Clause 21

For the consideration aforesaid and as a separate and independent stipulation in addition to and not in derogation of the guarantee herein given we hereby irrevocably and unconditionally undertake to indemnify you and keep you indemnified fully and completely against all claims and demands actions and proceedings losses damages costs and expenses including legal costs as between a solicitor and client and all other liabilities of whatsoever nature or description which may be made taken incurred or suffered by you in connection with or in any manner arising out of the facilities.

A

[23] It is our considered view that in the present case the appellant, being a person who has given a guarantee and more importantly an indemnity, is primarily liable for losses which the principal borrower could not have been made liable. His liability is not dependent or secondary to the liability of the principal borrower. He is a principal debtor himself. The liability under a contract of indemnity does not depend on whether the principal debt is enforceable. It has no reference in law to the obligation of any third person. In essence, the liability of the person who has given an indemnity can be more extensive than that of the liability of the principal borrower. (See the cases of (1) Yeoman Credit Ltd v Latter & Anor [1961] 2 All ER 294 and (2) Chung Khiaw Bank Ltd v Soi Huan & Ors [1985] 1 LNS 71). (Emphasis added.)

[26] In other words, even if the lender (bank) cannot recover the loan from the principal borrower (ABN) for any reason, the principal obligor (respondent) is still liable to the lender (bank) under the principal obligor clause. Accordingly, we are of the considered opinion that the respondent is primarily liable to the bank under the principal obligor clause for the principal borrower, ABN's indebtedness. The respondent's liability is not dependent on or secondary to the liability of the principal borrower, ABN. The guarantee is a stand-alone agreement where the respondent has agreed to be the principal debtor himself. Therefore when an 'event of default' has occurred and the sum of RM236,796,198.64 is due and owing by ABN to the bank, the bank is entitled to claim the said sum from the respondent as a principal debtor under the terms of the guarantee.

[27] A similar issue was raised in Chung Khiaw Bank Ltd v Soi Huan & Ors, where the Supreme Court held as follows:

The first line of defence is that the liability of a guarantor is secondary and does not arise until the liability of the principal debtor has been legally established. Then it is submitted that until the Company's Suit in the Muar High Court is finally determined the bank cannot proceed further against the defendants. But Clause 15 of the Guarantee provides:

G

Though as between us and the Customer we are sureties only for the Customer, yet as between us and you we and each of us shall be deemed to be principal debtors for all the moneys the payments of which is hereby guaranteed and accordingly shall not be discharged nor shall our liability be affected by any fact or circumstances or any act thing omission or means whatsoever, whereby our liability would not have been discharged if we had been the principal debtors.

H

Those interested in the history of this kind of wording and the loophole that it was intended to plug, may refer to the commentary on Coutts & Co v Browne-Lecky & Ors [1947] KB 104 in J Milnes Holden's Law and Practice of Banking Vol II p 234 paras 1944–1947 Securities for Bankers' Advances. In a nutshell the result of this wording was to make any legal incapacity of the borrower irrelevant because by virtue of

I

- A the clause just quoted the persons executing it can be treated as primarily liable and sued accordingly. It therefore appears to me that the claim for damages by the Company against the bank in the Muar High Court Civil Suit is no answer to the bank's claim against the guarantors in this action. (Emphasis added.)
- B Whether the respondent is protected in equity
- [28] However, despite making a finding that the provisions in the guarantee is in absolute term and that the respondent is liable for any default in payment by the ABN, the learned judicial commissioner had dismissed the bank's application for summary judgment on the basis that as a surety, the respondent is protected under the law of equity when the bank is said to be acting in an unequitable and unconscionable manner against the borrower, ABN. The learned judicial commissioner had accepted the respondent's contention that he is discharged from the guarantee due to the bank's unconscionable conduct and failure to act in good faith which he claimed to be the triable issues in this case.
- D
- E [29] The respondent's complaint against the bank is that the bank had jeopardized the ABN project and ultimately caused the winding up of ABN by Sony Malaysia Sdn Bhd by the following acts:
- (a) the delayed and the erratic disbursement of the term loan during the critical gestation period of the ABN Project;
- F (b) the unilateral imposition of unreasonable timelines;
- (c) the proposed equity capitalization that altered the character of financing;
- (d) the suspension of the term loan when the equity capitalization was not accepted; and
- G (e) the rejection of the s 176 Scheme which ultimately led to the winding up order against ABN.
- H [30] Based on these complaints, the learned judicial commissioner applied the case of Anthony Lawrence Bourke & Anor v CIMB Bank Bhd [2018] 1 MLJ 104 where it was held that a bank owes a duty to the customer to exercise reasonable care and skill in disbursing the loan in accordance with the terms of the loan agreement.
- I [31] We are of the considered opinion and we agree with the bank that the complaints raised by the respondent are issues that can be raised by ABN in Suit No BA-22NCC-23-03 of 2021. However, under cl 5.2 of the guarantee, the respondent has agreed that his liabilities will not be reduced, discharged or adversely affected by 'any termination, amendment, variation, novation, supplement or release of or to any of the Security Documents.’ Any alleged unilateral variation to the loan agreement executed by ABN has no bearing on the guarantee. Added to that, cl 5.2 also provides that the respondent’s liabilities would not be discharged by ‘any act or omission ... which but for this provision might operate to exonerate or discharge the Guarantor or otherwise reduce or extinguish its liability under this Guarantee’.

[32] Further, pursuant to cl 8.1, all sums payable by the respondent under the guarantee will be paid in full without any set off, counterclaim or condition whatsoever. Therefore, pursuant to the said provisions under the guarantee, the respondent has clearly contracted his rights away and he is therefore precluded from raising any complaint that he is entitled to be discharged in equity. The learned judicial commissioner has clearly erred in law in her finding that the respondent is protected under the law of equity.

[33] In Amanah Merchant Bank Bhd v Sumikin Bussan Kaisha Ltd, Justice VC George held that it is settled law that a guarantor can contract away rights which he would otherwise have. His Lordship referred to the Federal Court decision in Heng Cheng Swee v Bangkok Bank Ltd where the construction of a contract of guarantee depends primarily upon its expressed terms and that the effect of a guarantee depends very much on the form of words used in the contract. His Lordship added as follows:

And in Perry v National Provincial Bank of England [1910] 1 Ch 464 at p 471, Cozens-Hardy MR said:

This is a curious case arising out of the law of principal and surety. It is important to distinguish clearly between the rights of a surety under an ordinary contract of suretyship not containing any special provisions and the rights of a surety where the instrument creating the suretyship contains certain special clauses. It is elementary law that in a simple case of principal and surety the surety is discharged if the creditor gives time to the principal or does certain other acts; and, afortiori, if the creditor releases the principal debtor, of course the surety is released too. There are a certain number of acts which will not release, the surety if, when the act in question is done, there is a reservation of rights against the surety. A common instance of this is giving time. When you find in the instrument of suretyship itself a provision that the surety shall be liable notwithstanding certain acts being done by the creditor which would otherwise release him, these doctrines have no application at all. It is not then a simple contract of suretyship. It is true that in one sense it is a contract of suretyship, but it is a contract of suretyship containing special clauses which deliberately exclude certain rights which the surety would otherwise have had. Even the right of subrogation can be contracted away. In O’Day v Commercial Bank of Australia Ltd [1933] 50 CLR 200, a decision of the High Court of Australia, Dixon J said commencing at the bottom of p 219:

The ordinary rights of a surety in respect of securities given by the principal debtor do not exist in the present case. Each of the instruments of suretyship contains elaborate provisions which effectually disentitle the surety

A to any interest in, and to any rights in respect of the Security whether by way of subrogation or otherwise. It follows that no reliance could be placed upon a contention that the acts of the bank amounted to a wrongful dealing with securities discharging the surety.

B The principle was accepted in Canada as can be seen in Roynat Ltd v Denis et al 139 DLR (3d) 265, where at p 279 the judge found assistance from an earlier judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada referred to at pp 426–7 DLR:

C Despite this rule, it is open to the parties to make their own arrangements, and a surety is competent to contract himself out of the protection of the equitable rule requiring preservation of his Security. If authority is needed for such a proposition, it may be found in Rose v Aftienberger et al [1969] 9 DLR (3d) 42 at p 47; [1970] 1 OR 547 CA at p 552, where Laskin JA, as he then was, speaking for the Ontario Court of Appeal, said:

D The law is that sureties are entitled to the benefits of any Security taken by a creditor who has their promise to pay the debt of the principal obligor, unless the sureties have contracted themselves out of this right or are estopped from asserting it. In this connection, it is immaterial when the Security was taken or whether the guarantor knew of it at the time. (Emphasis added.)

E [34] In Citibank NA v Ooi Boon Leng & Ors the Federal Court at p 284 held that where the guarantor has abrogated his rights, he cannot resile from his position:

F In any event, the contract of guarantee contains express provisions giving the bank the right to do or omit to do certain things without thereby prejudicing its right against the respondents. Clause 8 provides that the bank may recover from the respondents notwithstanding any failure on its part to take any security or that any security given to the bank is invalid. Clause 16 enables the bank at its absolute discretion and without notice to or consent of the respondents to vary or alter the contract between the bank and the company and that any right of the respondents which is inconsistent with the terms of the contract has been waived by them. In other words there was a voluntary waiver of the rights of the respondents to be subrogated on payment of the loan. Accordingly where the respondents have promised to waive any variation or alteration and the bank has proceeded with the performance of the contract on that basis it would be in our opinion inequitable to allow them to resile from the contract. (Emphasis added.)

H

I [35] In American Express Sdn Bhd v Dato Wong Kee Tat & Ors [1990] 1 MLJ 91, among others, the respondents (directors and shareholders) appealed against the order of summary judgment granted to the appellant bank contending they should be given unconditional leave to defend. The company had defaulted in payment of the money loaned. The appellants brought a writ against the respondent claiming the sums due under their personal guarantees. Under the guarantees, the respondents undertook to be responsible until repayment of the ultimate balance whatever the position of the principal borrower. In allowing the appellants to sign final judgment on the sums claimed against all the respondents, the Supreme Court adopted the approach in Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago v Papanicolaou; The Fedora [1986] 2 Lloyd's Rep 441, where the Court of Appeal held:

(2) The purpose of the guarantee was to ensure immediate payment if the principal debtor did not pay; the court ought not to interfere since the parties had specifically provided both in the loan agreements and the guarantees that payment should be made free of any set-off or counterclaim it would defeat the whole purpose of the transaction, would be out of touch with business realities and would keep the bank waiting for a payment which both the borrowers and the guarantors intended it should have while protracted proceedings in the alleged counterclaims were litigated; ... (Emphasis added.)

[36] In Export-Import Bank of Malaysia Bhd v Secco Engineering Sewarage & Environmental Co Ltd & Ors [2012] 9 MLJ 839, Nallini Pathmanathan J (now FCJ) made similar findings as follows:

[25] I therefore have no hesitation to conclude that the facility agreement was wide enough to ensure that the failure to appoint the PMA at the material time did not affect the corporate guarantee. Indeed, it must be pointed out here that not only does the facility agreement have such an effect, but the corporate guarantee executed between the plaintiff and the fourth defendant does not indicate otherwise either. It is trite that a person who is not a party to a contract cannot claim benefit under the contract. Therefore the fact that money was released to the first defendant contrary to the terms of the loan agreement, or the relevant debenture, could not affect the liability of the fourth defendant towards the plaintiff under the guarantee. The guarantee should be read independently of the other agreement between the plaintiff and the first defendant unless the guarantee itself provides otherwise which the guarantee here does not (per Arifin Zakaria J, as the honourable Chief Justice then was, in Malayan Banking Bhd v Mawai Products Sdn Bhd (in receivership) & 3 Ors [1995] 1 BLJ 43; [1994] MLJU 327). (Emphasis added.)

[37] Under the guarantee, the respondent had contracted to pay the bank without any set off or counterclaim. The respondent had also agreed that his liabilities would not be affected or discharged by any termination, amendment or variation of the security documents. Therefore, whatever claim the borrower ABN may have against the bank has no bearing on the guarantee and does not affect the liabilities of the respondent under the guarantee. The respondent is not merely a surety, but a principal debtor. As such, he is not entitled to be discharged from his liability under the guarantee by virtue of cl 5.2 of the guarantee, despite the pending suit by ABN (see Bank Bumiputra Malaysia Bhd, Kuala Terengganu v Mae Perkayuan Sdn Bhd & Anor [1993] 2 MLJ 76 (SC)).

[38] With regard to the learned judicial commissioner's reliance on the case

A of Anthony Lawrence Bourke & Anor v CIMB Bank Bhd, we are of the considered opinion that such reliance was clearly misplaced. In Anthony Lawrence Bourke the bank was sued by its customer for failing to disburse a housing loan to the developer, thereby resulting in the termination of the SPA entered between the customer and developer. The customers were the B purchasers of the house and sought damages suffered due to the termination of the SPA. It is completely different from the present case where the bank is claiming the sum due and owing by the respondent under the guarantee.

Policy consideration

C [39] We are of the considered opinion and we agree with the bank that the learned judicial commissioner also erred in taking into consideration an irrelevant factor in arriving at her decision, that the project should not have failed as it was supported by the government (by way of a grant) and the D so-called public policy that the bank has a duty to facilitate the borrower towards achieving the project's objective.

E [40] We find that the issue of public policy is plainly irrelevant to the respondent's obligation to pay the sum due under the guarantee. On settled principles, the bank's rights to enforce the guarantee and the respondent's liability are found within the four corners of the guarantee itself (see The Pacific Bank Bhd (sued as guarantor) v Kerajaan Negeri Sarawak; Heng Cheng Swee v Bangkok Bank Ltd).

F [41] Further, we agree with the bank that it is not the respondent's pleaded case that the relationship between him, ABN and the bank is anything other than that of a lender/debtor. Given this, the duty of good faith and fair dealing clearly does not arise. In Aseambankers Malaysia Berhad & Ors v Shencourt Sdn Bhd [2013] MLJU 1553; [2014] 2 CLJ 77359, the Court of Appeal held that
 G the duty of good faith and fair dealing is not a suitable subject matter to be imposed on a banking transaction:

H [328] The relevant law on the facts of this appeal must surely be what is the duty of good faith and fair dealing in a banker-customer relationship in a loan transaction scenario? Can the duty of good faith and fair dealing be readily implied as a matter of contractual construction against this particular contractual context?

I [329] Absent any peculiar special relationship between lender and borrower, a borrower-lender relationship in a banking transaction, noted for very detailed and precise terms (invariably drafted and vetted by lawyers for both sides) being incorporated in the contract document, cannot with respect be a suitable subject matter to interpose any general obligation of good faith and fair dealing. The twin requirements of certainty and predictability in banking transactions have to be accorded primacy consistent with commercial needs and sensibilities. In my view, the banking industry is best guided, and its continuing growth secured when disputes between parties can be resolved by reference to the actual written terms and conditions in the contract documents, without interposing them with an overarching and uncertain perceived equitable obligation of good faith and fair dealing. In this connection, the cases supporting the position that in an ordinary borrower-lender relationship there cannot be a fiduciary relationship again become very relevant. The cases have been referred to earlier, and again it is not necessary to repeat them here. (Emphasis added.)

[42] In the circumstances, we find that the learned judicial commissioner was plainly wrong to hold that the bank has a duty to facilitate ABN towards achieving the ABN project's objective based on grounds of public policy.

Statement of account under cl 15.2

C

[43] Under cl 15.2 of the guarantee, the respondent has agreed that a statement of account issued by the bank 'as to the amount of any moneys and liabilities for the time being incurred or due to BPMB by the guarantor will, save for manifest errors, be final and conclusive proof of the indebtedness of the borrower under the facility for all purposes whatsoever including purposes of legal proceedings and will not be questioned on any account whatsoever'.

D

[44] The bank had issued the statement of account in exh BPMB-14. The statement of account clearly shows the amount owing by ABN to the bank, which the respondent is liable to pay the bank. Therefore, pursuant to the case of Chempaka Finance Bhd v Ho Lai Ying & Anor [2006] 2 MLJ 685, we are of the considered opinion that the statement of account is prima facie evidence of the sum owing and this was not disputed by the respondent.

CONCLUSION

[45] It is clear that the guarantee which the parties have entered into was executed with the intention of protecting the bank against the non payment of the loans given to the borrower, ABN. The terms and conditions in the guarantee must be given a strict interpretation of what the parties have intended.

G

[46] The respondent had given an unconditional guarantee, as the principal obligor/debtor, to pay the bank on demand upon the happening of the 'event of default'. As an 'event of default' has occurred under the facility and the sum of RM236,796,198.64 is due and owing by the borrower to the bank, the bank is entitled to claim for this sum from the respondent under the terms of the guarantee.

H

I

[47] The respondent's liability under the guarantee is independent of the facility agreement and therefore any claims that ABN may have in Suit

A BA-22NCC-23-03 of 2021 against the bank does not discharge the respondent from his obligation to pay.

[48] In the circumstances, we find that this is a fit case to allow the application for summary judgment. The decision of the learned judicial commissioner is set aside and summary judgment is entered against the respondent in terms of the application. As the appellant is withdrawing their prayer for costs on an indemnity basis, we allow costs of RM10,000 here and RM5,000 below to the appellant subject to allocatur fees.
